

Multi– stakeholder workshop on data quality framework for Adverse Drug Reaction reporting

1 March 2024

Virtual meeting / EMA, Amsterdam

Following the recent publication of the Data quality framework for EU medicine regulation, the European Medicines Regulatory Network (EMRN) is consulting with stakeholders to create chapters for specific domains of medicines regulation. The next chapter will concern human and veterinary Adverse Drug Reactions (ADRs) arising from all sources (e.g. spontaneous reports, medical literature, non- interventional studies and interventional clinical trials).

EMRN is organising a workshop to obtain input from all stakeholders involved in ADR reporting. The aim of this workshop is to bring together experts in the field to build on their extensive experience and knowledge relating to ADR data quality, in order to:

- Familiarise key stakeholders with the published EU Data Quality Framework (DQF):
 - share initial reflections on how to apply the EU DQF metrics/specialisation/maturity levels model to ADR reports;
 - provide an overview of the uses of EudraVigilance data and the current data quality activities performed by EMA on ADR data received in EudraVigilance.
- Collect input from experts in the field and learn from existing experiences:
 - characterise the different ADR reporting routes and use- cases for different stakeholders & the challenges associated regarding the data quality of each route;
 - identify the main actors regarding ADR data quality processes for different stakeholder groups;
 - characterise current practices for improving ADR data quality within different stakeholder groups (e.g. MAHs, regulators, CROs, reporters (patients/HCPs)).
- Discuss important challenges related to measuring, characterising and improving data quality in the context of Adverse Drug Reaction (ADR) data.
- Identify the key topics which should be covered in the Data Quality Framework ADR chapter.
